Abstract	Currently, the needs for childcare support are becoming more diverse. Therefore, it is necessary to ask whether the needed support is reaching the target audience in need. The ultimate goal of this research is to form a support system for high quality support. This study is an introduction to this research. Identify the concepts of research and practice related to child-rearing support in the areas of childcare, welfare, social education, health, and medical care. In this paper, we have organized the concepts in the field of childcare, where most research on childcare support is conducted. As a result, it was found that: (1) the concept of childcare support is not defined in the field of childcare; (2) the scope of childcare support varies depending on the project; (3) the use and selection of support is left up to the parents; and (4) the system does not recognize that there is a mismatch between the content of support and needs.
keyword	child care support、childcare、support needs、learning of parents
