Abstract	Following on from the survey on cooperative elementary schools, we conducted a survey on cooperative junior high schools. It was revealed that as of 2025, there will be 25 cooperative junior high schools nationwide. Combined with the 10 cooperative elementary schools reported earlier, there will be a total of 35 cooperative elementary and junior high schools nationwide. These schools do not necessarily have one school per union, and we also confirmed cases where one school union operates multiple schools. Organized by management type, there were only two school unions that operated only elementary schools. Meanwhile, there were six school unions that operated both elementary and junior high schools. One of these unions is the Souraku Eastern Area Union, which consists of three towns and villages in southern Kyoto Prefecture, and operates three elementary schools and two junior high schools. It was also revealed that there were 18 school unions that operated only junior high schools. Of the school unions that existed as of last year's report, one was dissolved in March 2025. In addition, it was confirmed that several school unions are scheduled to dissolve in the future.
