Title	"Prospects for local welfare assistance regarding cemetery management with a focus on maintaining local cities: A case study of initiatives in Nagasaki Prefecture"
Author	Takao SASAKI, Kiyotaka Ochi
Affiliation	Nara Saho College, Hirado Council of Social Welfare
Abstract	The author concluded that the cause of this is that while the individual is alive, social welfare services are available to the individual, but after death, these services are no longer available, making it difficult for the bereaved to maintain the grave as the bereaved age increases. In addition, from the perspective of maintaining regional cities, the author took Nagasaki Prefecture as an example and presented efforts to deal with abandoned graves (garden funerals, grave-keeping services).
