Abstract	The purpose of this study was to organize agency, consider agency from the theory of researchers, and propose classes for nurturing agency. Agency is the capacity to set a goal, reflect and act responsibly to effect change. Agency is required to acquire, own, and activate. At the same time, agency is able to learn. So I found that I could study at school. The learning conditions are premised on an environment where you can decide for yourself. In addition, the learner is given "responsibility," "authority," and "initiative." Learners form agency through the creation of learning activities. Also, "responsibility" is important for an agency. Learners need to be responsible not only for their own decisions, but also for others and society. A valid class is an " assessment as learning" class. Positioning assessment as a learning activity. By doing so, the learner also assesses the quality of the creation of the learning activity. This makes it possible for the agency to learn responsibility.
