Abstract	First year experience in Nagasaki International University (NIU) is constructed by three classes, Introduction to Hospitality, First year seminar, and Culture of tea ceremony. Especially a class of Introduction to Hospitality is very important class because basic of educational philosophy in NIU stands for acquiring hospitality. Moreover, in order to foster school spirit of students, it is necessary to shorten the distance between the university and the student. On the basis of this idea, faculty and staffs worked together to teach a first year seminar class. During and after our practice of first year seminar, three different kinds of survey was conducted. i.e., 1) a survey to understand the condition of first year students at the begging of entering university, 2) a survey to grasp students' idea about Introduction to Hospitality, 3) a survey to hear opinion by teachers. As a result of survey about 1), there is a difference among departments in terms of relation between university and students before the entrance, motivation of entrance, and attitude toward to campus life. The result also showed that much of students feels insecure at the beginning of enrollment. A result from 2) revealed that student had started to think about hospitality through a class. Students also had positive impression about the class because they could learn from various teachers and they could be friends with students from different departments. However the results was not a uniform state across departments. A result from 3) revealed that more than half of teachers admitted the meaning of Introduction to Hospitality, and they felt that they became closer to students. There was also some suggestions to lead improvements of the class.
