Abstract	In recent years Japan, many colleges have programed collaborative activities with local communities into the curriculum. We have discussed the educational effects that can be expected from the joint activities with the local community based on our college cases. There, it was deduced to be effective for own sociability with social norms, contribution to the community (awareness of a cooperation), self-esteem, and self-reliance, as a pre-stage of their professional activities. In this paper, we summarized the collaborative activity with local communities of “Vivid! 249, Delicious Food and Health Festa, 2019” which was carried out as collaborative learning with other course students, speculated the educational effects from observation of the activities, and the meaning of the activity was considered.
