Abstract	Korea has been working on early intervention and inclusive education after the establishment of "Act on Special Education for Disabled People" in 2008. We visited two related institutions in Pusan and Ulsan. Through the visits to such institutions, we found that Korea is facing on problems as those in Japan. We also found that Korea has been taking measures including continuous support beyond the age, the way of the training instruction, and the educational systems of the managerial class that we would learn. We believe that it is useful to learn such measures taken in Korea in order to enhance Program for Promoting Inter-University Collaborative Education. Therefore, we are planning to exchange information with the persons related to special education in Korea.
keyword	Korea, developmental disorders, early childhood, inclusive education
