研究業績 英文表記

標字佐市封戸地区の交流事業での活動実績からー」 著者名 佐々木隆夫 所属 別府大学 「The potential of tea ceremonies to prevent future social isolation among elderly women: from the results of activities in the Fube area of Usa City, Oita Prefecture, which is experiencing population decline。 Author Takao SASAKI Affiliation Beppu University Elderly women in depopulated areas often have their children raising their children in urban areas, and after the death of their husbands, they can feel lonely and become socially isolated. In order to prevent this, we thought about the need for future interaction, and held a tea ceremony to make it easier for elderly women to gather, and presented the results. Although tea ceremony is considered to be part of community welfare rather than a public welfare service, it fully met the needs of the community, and we also	和文
Title ### Takao SASAKI Author ### Takao SASAKI Affiliation ### Beppu University Elderly women in depopulated areas often have their children raising their children in urban areas, and after the death of their husbands, they can feel lonely and become socially isolated. In order to prevent this, we thought about the need for future interaction, and held a tea ceremony to make it easier for elderly women to gather, and presented the results. Although tea ceremony is considered to be part of community welfare rather than a public welfare service, it fully met the needs of the community, and we also showed that the participants and cooperating students were able to	表題	「高齢女性の将来的な社会的孤立防止に向けた茶会の可能性-人口減少がある大分 県宇佐市封戸地区の交流事業での活動実績から-」
Title "The potential of tea ceremonies to prevent future social isolation among elderly women: from the results of activities in the Fube area of Usa City, Oita Prefecture, which is experiencing population decline" Author Takao SASAKI Affiliation Beppu University Elderly women in depopulated areas often have their children raising their children in urban areas, and after the death of their husbands, they can feel lonely and become socially isolated. In order to prevent this, we thought about the need for future interaction, and held a tea ceremony to make it easier for elderly women to gather, and presented the results. Although tea ceremony is considered to be part of community welfare rather than a public welfare service, it fully met the needs of the community, and we also showed that the participants and cooperating students were able to	著者名	佐々木隆夫
Title "The potential of tea ceremonies to prevent future social isolation among elderly women: from the results of activities in the Fube area of Usa City, Oita Prefecture, which is experiencing population decline" Author Takao SASAKI Beppu University Elderly women in depopulated areas often have their children raising their children in urban areas, and after the death of their husbands, they can feel lonely and become socially isolated. In order to prevent this, we thought about the need for future interaction, and held a tea ceremony to make it easier for elderly women to gather, and presented the results. Although tea ceremony is considered to be part of community welfare rather than a public welfare service, it fully met the needs of the community, and we also showed that the participants and cooperating students were able to	所属	別府大学
Author Takao SASAKI Beppu University Elderly women in depopulated areas often have their children raising their children in urban areas, and after the death of their husbands, they can feel lonely and become socially isolated. In order to prevent this, we thought about the need for future interaction, and held a tea ceremony to make it easier for elderly women to gather, and presented the results. Although tea ceremony is considered to be part of community welfare rather than a public welfare service, it fully met the needs of the community, and we also showed that the participants and cooperating students were able to	英文
Abstract Elderly women in depopulated areas often have their children raising their children in urban areas, and after the death of their husbands, they can feel lonely and become socially isolated. In order to prevent this, we thought about the need for future interaction, and held a tea ceremony to make it easier for elderly women to gather, and presented the results. Although tea ceremony is considered to be part of community welfare rather than a public welfare service, it fully met the needs of the community, and we also showed that the participants and cooperating students were able to	Title	"The potential of tea ceremonies to prevent future social isolation among elderly women: from the results of activities in the Fube area of Usa City, Oita Prefecture, which is experiencing population decline"
Elderly women in depopulated areas often have their children raising their children in urban areas, and after the death of their husbands, they can feel lonely and become socially isolated. In order to prevent this, we thought about the need for future interaction, and held a tea ceremony to make it easier for elderly women to gather, and presented the results. Although tea ceremony is considered to be part of community welfare rather than a public welfare service, it fully met the needs of the community, and we also showed that the participants and cooperating students were able to	Author	Takao SASAKI
Abstract Abstra	Affiliation	Beppu University
	Abstract	Elderly women in depopulated areas often have their children raising their children in urban areas, and after the death of their husbands, they can feel lonely and become socially isolated. In order to prevent this, we thought about the need for future interaction, and held a tea ceremony to make it easier for elderly women to gather, and presented the results. Although tea ceremony is considered to be part of community welfare rather than a public welfare service, it fully met the needs of the community, and we also showed that the participants and cooperating students were able to interact through tea ceremony culture.
keyword	keyword	